TITLE: Is Missional Church (Still) Our Best Option?

The "missional movement" began over 20 years ago. With it came the hope of transforming the Church. Did it happen? Is that our best hope post-pandemic, and should you be steering your family or church toward missional living today?

Here are 3 things to believe and consider about missional living and discipleship as a lifestyle...

1. God has always desired that his people—his family—would live together in such a way that the world would know what he is truly like! Living a life on mission with God is the life you were created and saved to now live. This starts by believing that you are part of a family of missionary servants, sent as disciples of Jesus who make more disciples, filling the world with God's glory. It sounds too good to be true... but it is true!
2. Your past church apathy or lukewarm Christian lifestyle does not change God's love for you! He knows the plans he has for you, from before time began, to bless you and prosper you—for your good and His glory. Ask God to forgive any past complacency and to lead you to truly live the life he desires for you, your family, your church. All day. Every day.
3. Start making an intentional step toward getting equipped and growing in gospel fluency today. Half-read books about all of this do nobody any good. Take a course, get a coach, find a missional mentor or community you can learn and grow with. Every day is an opportunity to grow and mature in Christ and help others do the same. Life on life, life in community, and life on mission are what we were created for! You're not waiting around anymore... are you?

If you're interested in learning how to grow in gospel fluency and make discipleship a lifestyle, let's talk. We'll give you a fully reproducible framework and tools! I'd love to set up a quick Zoom call and get to know you and tell you about the coaching we offer. ~Caesar
