TITLE: Spirituality That Fuels God's Mission

Mission for God and intimacy with God can often become disconnected and seem like competing priorities and passions. But you can cultivate a vibrant and authentic spirituality that doesn't draw you away from your neighbors, rather, it propels you into the lives of others and the needs of your city.

Here are three key things to believe and consider about your spiritual practices:

1. The Lord is truly worthy of our delight, and our journey with Him is an adventure worth pursuing. It's my hope that no one misses out on experiencing the depth of joy and fulfillment that comes from knowing and walking with Him. When we recognize His worthiness, we begin to see that the pursuit of His presence is not just a duty but a delightful journey filled with endless discoveries of His goodness and love.
2. Engaging in spiritual practices is more than just going through the motions; it's about allowing God to shape us in profound ways. Each moment spent in prayer, meditation, or worship is an opportunity for transformation, as we open ourselves to the love and guidance of the Divine. By embracing these practices, we not only receive God's love but also learn to reciprocate it, deepening our relationship with Him in the process.
3. Remember, these practices are not about earning God's love. They are a privilege and an opportunity to be with Him. When we approach these practices from a place of privilege, we understand that it is a gift to know God and to have a relationship with Him. This perspective shifts our focus from trying to earn His love to simply receiving it and responding with gratitude and love. Out of this overflow of love and gratitude, our lives naturally begin to change as we align our hearts with His, finding greater joy, peace, and purpose in living for His glory.
